HARRY BIGGS

With years of experience in data curation, data manipulation and data visualisation, I am looking to take my skills into the private sector to gain industry experience and add efficiency to a team.

🎓 EDUCATION

2019 | 2017

MSc, Genetics
Hughes lab, Department of Biochemistry 📍 University of Otago

- Thesis: Exosome mRNA localisation.
- A dual cell culture/bioinformatics project, focussing on extracellular vesicles, with a variety of methods.

2015 | 2013

BSc, Genetics (minor Microbiology)
Dunedin, New Zealand 📍 University of Otago

- A standard Bsc with a minor in microbiology, the results of which earned me a postgraduate position offer.

💻 RELEVANT WORK EXPERIENCE

2020 | 2019

Data curator
Gardner lab, Department of Biochemistry 📍 University of Otago

- With a focus on data provenance and reproducibility, my role as an associate research fellow involved a large amount of data curation and literature writing. Other roles included helping postgraduate students and performing odd jobs when necessary

🖥 RELEVANT TEACHING EXPERIENCE

2020 | 2019

Data carpentry instructor
Department of Biochemistry 📍 University of Otago

- Teaching Introduction to command line from the data carpentries.

2018 | 2017

Undergraduate demonstrator
Department of Biochemistry 📍 University of Otago

- Being friendly, engaged and understanding to any and all students while teaching laboratory coursework and protocols.

About me: I am incredibly passionate about teaching, and have 10 years of tutoring both one-on-one and large groups, ranging from ages 6 through to university level. In my spare time I enjoy performing on stage, giving me excellent public speaking abilities and confidence in front of large groups.
